
CONTENTS

International Policy

Mikhailov S. A. Changes of the USA Approaches to the European Security and Defense Policy

The article examines main trends in the evolution of the USA approaches to the European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP) in 2006–2010. The main factors of the evolution and its consequences for transatlantic relations are being also analyzed in the article 7

Yurasova L. A. Visegrad Caucus: Myth or Reality?

Amid the financial-economic crisis the Visegrad group activity has become more intense. The member-countries of this regional unity are trying to consolidate their efforts to defend their interests more successfully within the European Union. The article analyzes the old and new problems of bilateral relations of some B-4 members, which should be overcome to make the union more effective 24

New Eurasia

Kourtov A. A. Initial Stages of Constitutionalism Development in Kazakhstan

The rise and formation of the kazakh constitutionalism was carried out within the Russian Empire. Its influence has played a leading role in formation of the kazakh state institutions 44

Sytin A. N. The Baltic States on the post-Soviet Area in Context of Their Relations with Russia

The Article is devoted to the analysis of modern foreign policy of the Baltic States on the post-Soviet area, first of all to their mutual relations with Russia. The author sums up several results of relations of the parties and considers prospects of their development under the policy of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia 64

Defense and Security

Terekhov V. F. National Security Policy of the Government of the Democratic Party of Japan

After the Democratic Party of Japan took the office in autumn 2009 there arose discussions about probable changes in approaches of the new government to the national security and military construction. A year later we can confidently say that defense policy of the Democratic Party of Japan follows the trends formed in the last years of the Liberal Democratic Party governing 80

Ermakov S. M. U.S. Armed Forces in Europe: From Forward Basing to Global Military Presence

The article presents US approaches to the Global Defense Posture, in particular to overseas military presence. Possible ways of further reconfiguration of American military presence in Europe, its role in support of US regional and global interests and related threats to the Russian security are being analyzed in the article 99

Economy

Semenova E. A. The Role of the State in Innovation Stimulation

Promotion of innovations, with R&D as an integral part, has become the priority in the policy of many countries. Whereas in Russia, most experts and policymakers understand the need to change the paradigm of economic development, there are continuous disputes on what is more important at the present moment: modernization on the basis of imported technologies or national breakthrough innovations	119

Novak A. Z., Rych K. Poland: Euro will be later – Costs or Benefits? The article presents the view on perspectives of Poland's joining to the European Monetary Union under general financial instability and euro fluctuations. Controversial consequences of the decision to postpone the accession process, the influence of the global financial crisis on Polish economics, reasons for relatively favorable conjuncture and specifics of the government crisis management are shown in the article	134
History
Milevsky O. A. Russian Foreign Policy in the Far East at the End of the XIXth – Beginning of the XXth Century According to L. A. Tikhomirov's Geopolitical Perspective The article reviews ideas of some conservative thinkers on Russian foreign policy in the Far East at the end of the XIXth – beginning of the XXth century on an example geopolitical heritage of Tikhomirov, who unlike most of right-wing leaders proved the idea that geopolitical status of the Russian Empire in the Far East was impossible without strengthening of its sociocultural and religious influence	147
Religion and Policy
Filyanova V. N. On the Way to "Absolute Freedom": Postmodernism and Christianity Crisis in Western European mentality in the mid-XXth century gave rise such a cultural phenomenon as postmodernism. It seeks to deny not only traditions of totalitarian thinking, former concepts of science, art, public and civil life, but also Christian roots of the European culture	167
Reviews
Smolin M. B. Russian Army Poet and His Military Spirit Philosophy Book review: Kersnovsky A. A. Philosophy of war. M. : Moscow Patriarchate Publ. House, 2010. 208 p.	182
Kuznechevsky V. D. October Coup Unfairly Overshadowed 1917 February Revolution Book review: Živanov S. Pad Ruskog carstva : 2 t. Beograd : Nolit, 2007. T. I : Rusija u Prvom svetskom ratu. 717 s. T. II : Februarska Revolucija. 630 s. (Zhivanov S. The Fall of the Russian Empire: 1–2 vol. Vol. I : Russia during the First World War. 717 p. Vol. II : February Revolution. 630 p.)	187
Terekhov V. F. The Second World War in the East Book review: The score of the Second World War. Storm in the East. M. : Veche, 2010. 460 p. ("Actual history" series)	192
Publications of RISS	197
Information for Authors	198